

Using Proquest's PA Research I

http://www.keystone.edu/Miller_Library

Proquest contains articles and/or abstracts from 1000 periodicals (newspapers, magazines, newsletters and journals) on a wide range of topics within the arts, business, humanities, health, social sciences & sciences. This database is available anywhere on the campus network and allows you to limit your search to "Peer Reviewed" publications if your search is more scholarly. Proquest is especially useful for finding reviews.

Access the database from the Miller Library's website ->Finding Articles & Database ->Proquest

Basic Search

A basic search offers a quick way to browse a general topic in the early stages of research. When running a search, pay attention to the date range of your search, and know that you can limit your search to full text only, or, more importantly, you may want to check "Show articles from peer reviewed publications only" if you are searching for scholarly material.

Basic Search

Advanced Search

Advanced searching allows you to modify whether you search for citations and abstracts, for authors, for titles etc. Also specific dates ranges can be set as well as searches which only include full text articles, and scholarly journals, including peer-reviewed.
