Library Guide Electronic Journals

There are a number of scholarly and non-scholarly periodicals freely available on the Web, many with full-text access, but remember: As with any Web resource, pay attention to the web address, affiliation, title, bibliography, contact information and site quality before adopting the source. If you are looking for scholarly and/or peer-reviewed journals and articles, remember to apply that criteria to your source as well.

The image shows the top portion of a website for the Scholarly Societies Project. At the top, a yellow banner with a decorative border contains the text: "Scholarly Societies Project", "www.scholarly-societies.org", and "sponsored by the University of Waterloo Library". Below this is a decorative horizontal line with floral motifs. Underneath, there are two navigation buttons: "Full-Text Serials" on a dark brown background and "Background" on a red background. At the bottom of this section, a small text box begins with "From the earliest days to the present, scholarly societies have played a strong role in publishing serials to discuss scholarly research in their areas of interest. These serials".

The image shows a webpage from UCSD Libraries titled "Directories of Electronic Journals Beyond UCSD". It includes navigation links: "Back to: [Electronic Journals etc] [What's New]". Below that is a link to the "Directory of Electronic Journals and Newsletters" from the Association of Research Libraries (UCSD Only), with a note that it is one of the best places to look for information about particular electronic journals or newsletters. A section titled "Directories and Lists Available in These Categories:" lists several categories: "Electronic Journals and Magazines", "Newspapers and Other News Media", "Publishers, Including UCSD and UC E-Journal Providers", "Zines" - independent Web Magazines, and "Archival Projects: Some No Longer Current". At the bottom, there is a link to "Directories and Lists of Electronic Journals and Newsletters".
